MOSAICO

Where an understatement turns into elegance: Concrete mosaic on the wall

A real gem is hidden behind the glazed garden facade of one modern extension: this is a top-quality swimming pool that was built onto the owner's existing dwelling in a suburban district of Bavaria.

The home extension should meet a number of objectives according to the client couple wishes. There is a garage with twelve parking spaces on the ground floor. This also includes a criss cross cubic structure on the basement floor which allows for an extra option. Among other things, there is also a new swimming pool in the upper area of the extension.

Essentials are trimmed right down, and clear lines and minimalist elegance are an ambient feature where this is concerned. This is why high-quality materials and their elegant surfaces really do stand aside on their own. There is one element, which above all that attracts attention. We are talking about the wall in front of the pool. This is covered with gold-coloured wall tiles from the MOSAICO oxydo range made from extremely fine GODELMANN architectural concrete, and the varying thicknesses of stone, which help create a three-dimensional effect. The individual panels are combined together like a mosaic and form a unique work of art.

The mural is positioned indirectly via a skylight throughout the daytime. The surface is illuminated with artificial light during the evening, which makes the golden surface even more expressive. The golden-colored designer tiles not only vary in thickness and surface structure, but they can also alternate in small shades of colour. This is what creates the vibrant and multi-faceted mural.

All of the MOSAICO tiles are completely moisture-resistant and are predestined so that they can be applied in bathrooms, saunas or wellness facilities.
